SWAP CL-1 EAR + MIC

CL-1 cassette interface lead that the User Club supplies has a slight fault. The EAR and MIC labels have been put on the wrong way round. So if you are experiencing problems loading your tape based software on your CPC 6128 try swapping the two leads round.

COPY SUPERCALC 2 TO CPC 6128

Some of our members are still having problems making working copies of Supercalc 2 on their CPC 6128.

The procedure is as follows:

- 1) Format a Blank disc
- 2) At the CPM "A" Prompt insert the Supercalc master disc in Side 1 of the drive and type:
Submit [space] Make6128

The screen will flicker and the Supercalc preparation menu will appear on the screen.

DDI-1 AND FD-1 LEAD ARROW POINTING UP

Members who have a DDI-1 or an FD-1 disc drive, please note the following when connecting the lead into the back of the drive.

Look closely at the lead, and you will notice a small arrowhead on one side of the connecting plug.

This side of the lead must be face upwards when connecting the lead into the drive. If the lead is inserted the wrong way you will find that you can't load any discs with error messages appearing.

COPY MASTERFILE II'S MASTER DISC WITH PIP

Masterfile II seems to be causing some difficulties amongst our members. This is because in the manual it tells you to copy the master disc using diskit. Well, on experimentation we have found that this does not work. However, all is not lost since the PIP command will transfer the files across no problem. All you do is type 'PIP' while in CP/M with the CP/M disc in the drive you are currently logged to. Then type A=, and press RETURN. Insert the original master disc when prompted for the drive 'B' disc, and the blank disc when prompted for drive 'A'. You now have a copy of your master disc.

DOES CP/M HAVE THE VIRUS?

A lot has been said about the Virus, a nasty routine that lurks inside the Commodore Amiga and infects its operating system and discs (no, this is not an April Fool). There are now rumours of a CP/M virus which grabs control of the system clock and at midnight jams the system bus and corrupts the interrupt routine. However, the Amstrad CP/M machines (CPC's and PCW's) are said to be immune due to their design. Amstrad are working on a checking program to ensure your machine is not affected.

AMSTRAD MACHINES ABROAD

Many people have asked whether Amstrad Computers bought in the United Kingdom will work overseas. Well, the power supplies in the UK versions of the machines are intended for use with a 240 Volts mains supply with a frequency of 50 Hertz. Unfortunately, most mains standards overseas are 110V at 60Hz. Its not worth risking your machine when it will not work, so therefore we advise that if you are intending to use your machine abroad you should check on that country's mains supply first.

CAN YOU HELP

Can you remember the letter we printed for Mrs Margaret Lawrence from Greenford in Middlesex in the November '87 Amdata? For those of you who've just joined the club we'd like to tell you that Margaret is a disabled lady who is paralysed from the neck down. She operates her CPC6128 by the use of an emulator which she can suck. Whilst she is coping well with the word processor she still has problems in learning the computer. Margaret has received superb help from a gentleman in Southampton but unfortunately the distance between them has enabled him to travel to Greenford only once and she finds learning on the telephone difficult. Can you help? Could you sit with Margaret and explain the computer to her? If so we would be delighted if you ring this person in need on: 01 578 8782

YOUNG MEMBERS

Following our article to find the User Clubs youngest member I can confirm to date that Julie-Anne Allen from Sherrif Hill in Gateshead who is now 6 years old is the youngest full member. We had a terrific response and some lovely letters including one from Mrs. E. Davis whose three year old grandson played games on the PC 1512 and we also received a super letter from Mr. R.M. Zachary whose two year old son Paul (Pictured above) enjoys playing the game Gatecrasher. Super Response! Thank you everybody who contributed.

LAMPOST

Mr. West of Surrey writes:-

I am an elderly user of 74 years and have a CPC 6128. My reflexes are not what they used to be, and when typing in the listings from your great magazine, the keys I press tend to duplicate before I take my finger off the key. This is very tedious as I have to keep deleting characters thus taking twice as long to key the listings in. Is there any special device or command I can use to slow the keyboard down.

Yours faithfully,
R. West.
EDITOR REPLIES:- I'm happy to say Mr. West that there is a command that can slow the keyboard down, therefore allowing more time for the key to be pressed before duplicating the character.

The command is Speed Key delay, repeat period eg. Speed Key 100,100. After typing in the command the keyboard will have slowed down and thus making it easier for you to use.

Kind Regards
The Editor.

Mr. R.W. Moses of Mid Glamorgan writes:-

I refer to the Mini-Office II cassette that I purchased from you a few months ago. Until today, I have only used the first side of the tape because that side contains the most appropriate applications for my computer studies. When I tried, today, to run the graphics program. I kept on getting a read error B message a few seconds after the program started to load. It loaded after about four attempts, but since then each time I try to load it again I get read error message. I would appreciate your advice as to what could be the cause.

Yours faithfully,
Mr. R.W. Moses
EDITOR REPLIES:- Dear Mr. Moses, It sounds as though either your tape heads are dirty or out of alignment. These are two very common problems with tape loading systems and frequently occur across all tape-based computers. Try cleaning your tape-heads with one of our superb tape cleaning kits. Leave the heads in that position to dry for a few minutes as the cleaning fluid will wipe the magnetic coating from your tapes if they come in contact with it. Just a couple of moments will be ample time for it to evaporate.

If this does not solve your problem, I suggest you have a reputable local dealer re-align your heads. This should not cost much and will make your loading far more reliable.
Kind regards,
The Editor.

Mr. Ellis from Orpington in Kent writes:-
I am extremely pleased with the DMP 2000 printer I purchased from you last year, after the careful guidance given by your technical department. It satisfies all my needs but one. I can't seem to get a hash sign and a pound sign on the same line. I realise this is not very important but it is sometimes necessary, when word processing on my 6128. I would appreciate any help from your talented technical department regarding this matter.
Yours hopefully,
P.E.J. Ellis

EDITOR REPLIES:- First of all Mr. Ellis, thank you for complimenting our technical department. Unfortunately you cannot get the hash sign, it is part of the American Character set and the pound sign is part of the British Character Set, and only one set can be used at the same time.
Kind regards,
The Editor.

Mr. Stansfield from Dorchester writes:-

Dear Sir,
I have a CPC 464, and would like to know whether I will be able to use a Protex ROM Chip (with ROM BOX) without using a RAM expansion box. Or whether I shall need to expand the RAM memory of my computer.
Yours faithfully,

M. Stansfield
EDITOR REPLIES:- Well Mr. Stansfield. No extra RAM expansion is needed to run the Protex (chip) on your CPC 464.

The Rom Box comes complete with eight sockets to allow seven other chips to be connected.

Rom Box CODE: ROMB 0003
